Casket Price List

Cardboard Cremation Box $125

This casket price list ranges between a cardboard carapace over a plywood base alternative container priced at $89.00 (pictured above) and a ribbon grained African mahogany casket with velvet interior priced at $8900.00 (pictured below), and everywhere in between. Either of these caskets may be used for burial, cremation, entombment or transfer of remains.

Parliament Mahogany (SO) $8900

The caskets listed below are either in our inventory or available for immediate delivery.

Any combustible casket or container may be used for cremation.

All of these caskets may be used for earth burial or entombment.

These prices are effective November 1, 2020. Prices are subject to change without notice.

This booklet includes a selection of caskets, coffins, and alternative containers suitable for burial, cremation, entombment or transfer of deceased remains. While by no means the “entire” inventory of available choices, it represents a comprehensive selection of caskets in a variety of materials and styles available from manufacturers in North America, Europe and Asia.

Wooden caskets will vary in cost according to the species of wood, whether it is solid wood, composite or veneer and the style of interior, finish and ornamentation.

Metal caskets will vary according gauge of steel, the density of copper or bronze, whether it is gasketed or not and the style of interior.

Some may be customized, others are standardized. All can be used for burial and all but the metal caskets can be used for cremation. At each of our locations a sampling of actual caskets is on display and available for inspection. Hundreds of additional options in caskets and other funeral merchandise are available in catalogues and digital/large screen format.

While we are well qualified to discuss with you differences in manufacture, provenance, materials and costs, the decision about which casket should be used belongs entirely to the next of kin and immediate family. We hope that this casket price list assists in making good decisions.
